Accidents take members

Three UTU members — Eli A. Locklear, James Wilson, and David C. Goodby — have been killed in separate incidents.

Locklear, 46, a CSX conductor and member of Local 1011 at Harriet, N.C., was killed May 26 when he was crushed by tons of coal while unloading a train. He was part of a two-person crew that was unloading a 97-car train at Progress, N.C., near the Weatherpoon Plant when he either fell or was pulled down into the coal.

Wilson, 35, a UP conductor and member of Local 923 in Dalhart, Texas, was riding on top of a train car that was being pushed in an Amarillo, Texas, yard when he fell and was hit by the train. He died at the scene.

Goodby, 47, a Union Pacific switchman, was killed June 8 in Houston, Texas, when a train ran him over during a switching accident. He was a member of Local 1892 in Houston.

First Coast workers sign

Employees of First Coast Railroad, Fernandina Beach, Fla., a property of rail holding company Genesee & Wyoming, have voted to be represented by the UTU.

The 31-mile switching railroad was acquired from CSX in April 2005 by G&W subsidiary Rail Link. It provides switching services at the Port of Fernandina, Fla.

Organizing assistance was provided by retired General Chairperson Warner Birdenham Jr. (GO 431), and General Chairperson (GO 347) Doyle Turner (Local 1962).

U.S. rail members ratify UTU national agreement

By overwhelming margins within each craft, members of the United Transportation Union have ratified a new national rail agreement covering wages, rules and working conditions.

The ratified agreement is retroactive to Jan. 1, 2005, and remains in force through Dec. 31, 2009.

“In the face of recurring national reports of overall wage declines in American industry, tens of thousands of American job losses, and relocations in health-care benefits and pensions for millions of workers, UTU members covered by this agreement gain a 17-percent wage hike, retroactive pay, no change in work rules, an increase in the meal allowance, and a cap on health-care contributions with no reduction in health-care benefits,” said UTU International President Mike Futhey. Effective Jan. 1, 2010, new hires will gain health-care coverage in just 30 days, rather than the previous 120 days.

“The ratified agreement also provides for arbitration to settle the dispute over entry rates tied to training, and with arbitrators we will have a hand in choosing,” Futhey said. The arbitration process will begin within 30 days under terms of the ratified agreement.

Federal court urges SMART constitution

AKRON, Ohio — A hearing was held in federal district court here May 28 on a motion by former UTU International President Paul Thompson, six UTU International vice presidents, and the UTU national legal department to intervene in the case challenging the merger between the UTU and the Sheet Metal Workers International Association.

The merger would create the International Association of Sheet Metal, Air, Rail and Transportation (SMART) Workers.

The motion was denied Jan. 1, 2008, implementation was halted Dec. 27 when Federal District Court Judge John R. Adams issued a temporary restraining order (TRO) in response to a complaint that UTU members had not been given a SMART constitution with the voting materials.

As a result, the complainants said, UTU members did not have sufficient information on which to make an informed decision when they voted last year to approve the SMART merger.

UTU members were unaware, for example, of conflicts between the two constitutions.

By agreement of the parties, the TRO has been extended until June 30. On April 10, the TRO was extended into early June to permit Judge Adams to rule on the motion to intervene, and it will remain in effect for 10 days following his ruling. Judge Adams did not say when he would rule.

At the May 28 hearing, Judge Adams heard testimony from some of the proposed interveners, as well as from UTU International President Mike Futhey.

In addition to deciding whether to permit Thompson and the others to intervene, the judge must rule on whether to grant a preliminary injunction, which would supplant the TRO.

Judge Adams said he now has sufficient information to make his ruling on a preliminary injunction. A preliminary injunction would keep the merger on hold until the case, and any appeals, run their course.

Futhey said he understood the judge to say that “it would be in the best interests of all concerned to put together a SMART constitution and reunite the merger to the UTU members for ratification.

“Failure to do that,” said Futhey, recalling the judge’s words, “could result in lengthy litigation and cause the memberships’ dues to be spent on legal fees. The judge said that there has got to be a better way to spend union dues money.”

Railroad Retirement Board hikes benefit rate

The maximum daily benefit rate payable for claims under the Railroad Unemployment Insur- ance Act increases to $61 from $59 in the new benefit year, which begins July 1, 2008, the Railroad Retirement Board reports.

Benefits are normally paid for the number of days of unemployment or sickness over four, in 14-day registration periods, so maximum benefits for biweekly claims will total $610.

Application forms for unemployment and sickness benefits may be obtained from railroad employers, railroad labor organizations, any Railroad Retirement Board (RRB) office, or the agency’s Web site at www.rrb.gov.

“Additionally,” said Futhey, “the UTU was the only union to gain continuation of a COLA, beginning in 2010, while a new agreement is being negotiated. The COLA put some $7 more per day in members’ pockets while we were at the negotiating table this round.

“We also retained, undis- turbed, our locally negoti- ated crew-consist agreements, the first from their attack on the Federal Employers’ Liability Act (FELA),” Futhey said.

Voting closed at midnight, June 9, and the American Arbitration Association, which conducted and tabulated the telephone bal- loting, reported that 18,076 votes were cast, with 15,313, or 85 percent, voting in favor of the agreement. Some 45,000 ballots were mailed, meaning 40 percent of those eligible to vote cast ballots.

The tentative agreement sent out for ratification was reached Jan. 23, following more than 38 months of negotiations with the National Carriers’ Conference Committee, which repre- sents BNSF, CSX, Kansas City Southern, Nor- folk Southern, Union Pacific and numerous

Warning issued on Chantix

The Federal Aviation Administration has banned the use by pilots and air traffic con- trollers of the anti-smoking prescription med- ication varenicline, which is sold by Pfizer under the name Chantix. On June 6, the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration sent the following advisory to medical examiners:

“While we do not name any medications, such as Chantix, in FMCSA regulations, it appears that medical examiners should not certify a driver taking Chantix because the medication may adversely affect the driver’s ability to safely operate a commercial motor vehicle.”

A DOT official told the UTU June 4 that the Federal Railroad Administration and the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration may soon issue their own ban, which would affect rail workers and bus operators.

Engineering’s quick thinking halts conductor

Mark Bruker is not faster than a speeding bullet, and he can’t leap tall buildings in a single bound. But his attentive eye and quick thinking did stop two powerful locomotives and likely averted a railroad catastrophe.

On March 18, Bruker, a Norfolk Southern engineer and member of Local 1190 at Ludlow, Ky., was operating an NS train from Fayette, Ky., to Greendale, Ky. He was traveling at 55 mph at about 5 p.m. as he and the train’s conductor rounded a bend saw what appeared to be a clear signal. At the time of day, Bruker said the sun’s glare makes it difficult to see the signal. “It’s clearly visible at night,” he said.

The signal was clear.

Traveling on the same track in the opposite direction, at about 41 mph, was another train barreling directly at Bruker’s No. 230. Bruker could see it in his side mirror. He immediately put his train into emergency and radioed the opposing locomotive cab to do the same.

“From what I understand, he had a bunch of hazardous material on the head end. There was a propane company near the tracks and we were in what is a residential area,” Bruker said.

The trains stopped just 1,200 feet apart.

“I told the signal maintainers had been upgrading the signal earlier in the day and had apparently crossed wires,” Bruker said. The signal showed green when it should have showed yellow and yellow when it should have showed green, he said.

Later in the day, Bruker said the trainmaster “saw it in time.” He said his conductor were not charged with any violations and were returned to service.

In honor of his actions, the officers and members of Local 1190 recognized Bruker at the next local meeting and presented him with a UTU jacket. The local arranged for a round trip (a day off).

“I congratulate Brother Bruker for his actions that most likely saved numerous lives and countless dollars in property damage,” Kentucky State Legislative Director David Miracle said. “Mark is a hero in my eyes and those of his fellow employees.”

“I think the whole reason I was honored by the local was because I was paying attention, it’s part of my job,” Bruker said. “The day off was really nice too. My wife and I don’t get a lot of time together.”

Local 989, Boston, Mass.
Member Alan T. Smyth Jr., 26, a conductor for the Massachusetts Bay Commuter Rail, passed away recently, Vice Local Chairperson Roberta Ward reported. Smyth was the son of MBCR engineer Alan Sr. and MBCR dispatcher Christine. “Al was a lot of fun and the kind of guy who filled the room when he entered it,” Ward said.

On May 1, Vice President John Previsich and General Chairpersons John England and Jim Hus- ton presented the proposed national railroad agree-
An old adage states, “Art begets art.” It inspires other artists to create.

In the case of UTU member Lola “Michelle” Winder, that old saying bears truth.

Winder, a yard foreman with the BNSF Railway and an amateur photographer since her youth, has for years been photographing graffiti painted on railroad boxcars.

Much of that graffiti is very elaborate and eye-catching and her photographs have earned her showings at two different art galleries and coverage in various Dallas/Fort Worth newspapers and magazines.

At about age 11, Winder expressed a desire to take up photography. Her father introduced her to family friend and gallery owner Perry Caldwell and her amateur career has been on track since.

“I started photographing anything back then — family porch shots, buildings, my older brother in sports,” Winder said.

Soon, Caldwell had her photographing million-dollar works of art.

After graduating from Arlington Heights High School in Fort Worth, Winder attended East Texas State University in Commerce, Texas.

Eventually, she became employed at BNSF.

The boxcar images were captivating and soon Winder was snapping photos of the graffiti with her Nikon 885 digital camera. The images were edited on Winder’s computer to her liking.

The first boxcar graffiti Winder remembers photographing is “The Skull” pictured on this page. That was the photo that started it all.

She showed the images to her mentor, Caldwell, and he said “Man, this is great. I really think you’ve got something here.”

He had suggested a showing of her work and even tossed a book about a book, Winder said. So she continued to photograph the rolling canvases.

Her fondness for photography soon led her to Colorado, where she assisted teaching forensic photography at the Beth-El School of Nursing at the University of Colorado in Colorado Springs.

In Colorado, Winder befriended Cherokees of Manitou Gallery owner Sharon Dahlman, who offered to show Winder’s work at the gallery. Winder landed a two-day showing at the gallery — a one-day showing of her photographs of exotic birds taken at the Gabriel Foundation (a bird sanctuary) — and a one-day display of her railroad art.

In the fall of 2007, Winder’s work was on display for just over a month at the Heliotrope Gallery in her hometown of Fort Worth. A special showing of her work entitled “Out on a Rail” was held during Fort Worth’s annual “Gallery Night,” the biggest night of the year for aspiring artists.

Heliotrope is owned by Debby Stein and Jan Edmonds. “The graffiti show was extremely popular, bringing to the Fort Worth community a new light to the artistic value of graffiti,” Edmonds said.

Winder said approximately 100 people saw her photos on Gallery Night and “everyone just loved it.”

There was even some talk of a documentary on Winder’s work. She estimates she sold about 20 photos. Her work is still on display at both galleries.

Winder recognizes that the graffiti is illegal. “In reality,” she said, “it is vandalism. But nobody really says anything to them (the artists).”

The UTU does not condone the destruction of railroad property either, but it does recognize that Winder’s work is appreciated by many and is acknowledging the coverage she has already received.

Winder expressed great appreciation to the galleries that have shown her art and she still hopes to have her work published as a coffee table book. “We now have a publisher,” she said.
Constitution, autonomy worth defending

Let me make clear my role with the UTU-member plaintiffs who gained a federal court restraining order halting implementation of the SMART merger.

My motivation is a solemn commitment to honor and defend the UTU constitution and this union’s cherished craft autonomy and general committee autonomy.

My initial support for the merger was based on two representations made by Paul Thompson, whom I had no reason to doubt at the time. One was that our union faced a financial crisis; that if we did not merge immediately, we faced financial ruin.

But I learned, after gaining access to our books, that UTU finances were far from dire.

We realized a $1 million surplus after the convention, and our finances have been improving dramatically after wasteful spending was eliminated.

The second false representation made by Paul Thompson was that the UTU constitution would be inserted intact into the SMWIA constitution, and our cherished craft autonomy, general committee autonomy and UTU autonomy would be preserved.

We later learned that, under the merger agreement, autonomy would be eliminated, and the authority of general chairpersons to make agreements would be eliminated.

Last October, at a meeting of UTU Western general chairpersons, Paul Thompson said – and this was recorded – that “autonomy has served its purpose” and has become “antiquated” and the merger with the SMWIA would make changes to the UTU constitution that “we know can’t be accomplished at a convention” through a delegate vote.

Our UTU constitution guarantees that any constitutional changes will be made only by UTU delegates.

I took an oath of office to honor and defend the UTU constitution, and that is precisely what I am doing in support of the UTU-member plaintiffs who obtained the temporary restraining order.

To read my deposition in support of the UTU-member plaintiffs – and to stay up to date on the court decisions – go to www.utu.org, click on the “SMART merger temporarily halted” link, and then click on “President Futhey’s deposition.”

I also urge you to sign up for UTU email alerts by clicking on that option on the UTU home page at the Web site, www.utu.org.

Our use of “Afro-American”

A recent issue of UTU News used the term “Afro American” in a headline, upsetting some members. We regret that.

UTU’s Human Rights Committee Director Ray Cunningham (Local 1933) finds nothing derogatory in the term. While “African American” is used in articles, space limitations sometimes make it necessary to abbreviate headlines.

UTU editors also note that Black Enterprise magazine supports an Afro-American History and Genealogical Society, a well-respected newspaper in the Baltimore/Washington area. The Afro-American and the University of Virginia, the University of Wisconsin and Yale University have departments of Afro-American studies.

Tax and spend, or borrow and spend?

Conservatives brag about their high ethics and family values, but they are hypocrites. Many who were pointing a finger and blaming were far from being ethical examples themselves.

Eight years ago, the nation elected two conservatives who promised America could have it all and painlessly. They were going to run the government by conservative principles, and even promised a tax cut.

What happened? The very rich did get tax cuts, and now we have budget deficits larger than the entire budget of Jimmy Carter.

We have gone from few mortgage foreclosures to many, and the stock market and value of the U.S. dollar have tanked. The mortgage foreclosure situation is so bad that the Federal Reserve dug deep in its pockets to save the banks and the bankers, while doing very little for those who were being kicked out of their homes. Under the Bush administration, the unemployment lines are growing.

The two conservative oilmen, who were complaining about gasoline selling at $1.50 per gallon, promised an energy policy that would solve our energy crisis. I just bought a tank full of $4+ per gallon gasoline.

The energy policy has worked very well for some. Billions of dollars are being pumped into the coffers of countries that are not our friends and may never be our friends.

Some of the money is going from those governments into the pockets of terrorists who are being trained to kill our children.

Seven years ago, much was said about Bill Clinton being a draft dodger. Of course, our two conservative leaders couldn’t quite find their way to Vietnam, either.

But they have led us into a war that soon will be longer than the United States involvement in both World War I and World War II combined. Many of our children have not come back, none will not come back, and many of those who have come back have lost limbs or have head injuries that won’t heal.

The conservatives brag about their high ethics and family values, but they are hypocrites. Many of those who were pointing a finger and blaming were far from being ethical examples themselves.

Several conservatives got caught taking cash from a lobbyist’s black bag. One conservative congressman got into trouble because he respected family values so much he had two of them.

Another member with conservative values was overly interested in the future of young boys. One conservative was charged with seeking sex in the men’s room. Another conservative’s name was found in a madam’s black book.

Yes, liberals have problems, also. They just don’t play the role of hypocrites.

The conservatives, again this election year, will beat their chests about values. They will do all they can to spread fear. Even after destroying our nation’s economy, they will point the finger at liberals and talk about tax and spend, while they borrow and spend us into a recession.

They want you to believe them and forget reality and history, and just vote with your emotion.

News from UTU State Legislative Boards

Alabama

“Also, for the first time, the carrier’s on-property safety committee process and working relationship with the safety representatives of organized labor will be held accountable for producing physical plant improvements,” Quay said.

“Also contained within the legislation is the Statewide Freight and Passenger Rail Plan,” Quay said. “The UTU intends to focus on restoration of key line segments, interlocking, passenger and commuter service, St. Paul Union Depot and Roadrailer service,” he said.

“Make no mistake: This is the power of your UTU PAC in action,” Quay said. “Thanks to all locals in the state for contributing to the passage of these important laws.”

Minnesota

State Legislative Director Phil Quayl reports that H.F. 3902, the Transportation Policy Omnibus Bill, which includes the Railroad Walkway Safety Act and the creation of a state railroad safety inspector position for tracks and bridges, has been passed.

“With this bill we have taken a significant step forward in protecting the safety of our members,” Quayl said. “We have set in place strong standards for walkways in yards.”

The state rail inspector will work with FRA representatives to enforce existing state and federal laws on rail right-of-ways, Quayl said. The cost of the inspector is assessed on the four Class I railroads operating in the state.

“We have for the first time, the carrier’s on-property safety committee process and working relationship with the safety representatives of organized labor will be held accountable for producing physical plant improvements,” Quayl said.

Louisiana

“May 3 was a great day in Louisiana for the Democratic Party and all of labor,” Desaul said. Don Cazayous was elected congressman in the 6th District, a seat the Republicans have held for 33 years. This is what UTU PAC money can do,” Desaul said.

“It was not only money, it was a lot of hard work put into this election. I would like to thank a group of retirees who have been continuously phone-bank- ing for two months. They are former state director A.B. Sonny Woodall (L-976, Shreveport), Fred Penaud (L-1501, Baton Rouge), Sammy Hollis (L-1501), Bobby Byrd (L-1501), Kinsey Reeves (L-1501), J.P. Wood (L-1501) and A.K. Valentine. This group called thousands of union members during the last two months to get them out to vote.

“Thanks to their efforts and the work of all the other labor unions, we now have a friend in Washington from the 6th District,” Desaul said. “However, we will not be able test very long because we have to do it all over again in November. My hope is that this group of volunteers has set an example for the rest of us in future elections.”

UTU wins grievances, helps pass paid-leave law

Congratulations to Local 1901 Chairperson Albert Col- lin and President Juan Ucanan at Panex in Florida on their success in winning four of five grievances.

Kudos also go to Local 172 Chairperson Theresa Costantini and Trustee Kathleen Stongia at Delco Transpor- tation in Pennsylvania. They successfully resolved con- tract grievances resulting in reinstatement of a member and assurances for eight of pay for lost work.

A special commendation goes to the New Jersey State Legislative Board and State Legislative Director Dan O’Connell for their efforts in helping to gain passage of legislation — signed by Gov. Jon Corzine — providing up to six weeks of paid family leave. They worked with the New Jersey State AFL-CIO and many community organizations to secure the legislation after 13 years of previously unsuccessful efforts.

Because of continued strong employer opposition, a compromise was required to gain legislative passage of the new law. Thus, the worker request- ing family leave first must use two weeks of vacation or sick leave. This ben- efit will be paid out of New Jersey’s Temporary Disability Income Fund, with employees paying $33 annually to ensure the coverage.

The New Jersey Legislative Board unsuccessfully sought to gain coverage for rail workers in the state, but because they do not pay into the disability income fund, they were not included in coverage. The new benefit will com-

Yardmasters, stewards ratify new contracts

Yardmasters employed on the Union Pacific and Amtrak, as well as dining- car stewards employed on Amtrak, have recently ratified contracts with their employers.

On the Union Pacific, yardmasters are jointly represented by the United Supervisors Council of American (USCA), which is made up of representa- tives from the UTU and the Transportation Communications Union (TCU), a division of the International Association of Machinists.

Almost 500 yardmasters are represented by the USCA. Of that, about 260 yardmasters are represent- ed on the UP by the Western Railroad Supervisors Association, a division of TCU.

The vote for the new contract was overwhelm- ingly in favor of ratification, said Vice President J.R. “Jim” Cumby, who assisted in the negotiations.

Cumby said he appreciated all the hard work of UTU General Chairpersons Dave Just and Mike Thompson dur- ing the negotiations. Cumby also praised the efforts of TCU Vice President John Lydon and General Chairperson Brian O’Reilly.

On Amtrak, the yardmasters ratified an agreement that is in line with the deal recently ratified by other Amtrak employees.

Meaningful terms, such as the UTU’s advocacy of the “Erica” Act and the “Dwight” Act, and the UTU’s support of the “Amtrak Act,” are among the key provisions in the new agreement.

The agreement reflects the desire to ensure that the Amtrak workforce is protected by the law, and that the Amtrak workforce is protected by the law. The agreement also includes the UTU’s support of the “Amtrak Act,” which was passed by the U.S. Congress in 2014.

Healthcare
This page provides links to health and wel-ness companies that administer medical, dental, vision, prescription drug, mental health/substance abuse and other insurance benefits under the nationally negotiated benefit plans. It also includes toll-free telephone numbers and claim mailing addresses for each of these providers.

In addition, you will find information about benefits offered on the providers’ web sites to assist you in obtaining “in-line” eligibility, claim and benefit status, as well as general health and wellness information. Other documents featured include “Important Information: When Considering Retirement,” “Important Information for Retired Employees and Dependents Becoming Eligible for Medicare” and “Questions and Answers on the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage.” A link to articles written by Norman
K. Brown, the UTU’s medical consultant, can also be found here.

Promotions
The UTU has arranged with the Avis rental car company a discount rental program that provides exclusive benefits for UTU members and officers renting vehicles for per-personal or business travel. On top of reduced rates, the program allows UTU members to participate in the company’s Preferred Service program. Once you enroll, you will receive an Avis Wizard Number that lets you quickly access your rental preferences. As a Preferred member, your car and paperwork will be waiting for you when you arrive because Avis takes care of everything in advance.

The Dell Employee and Affiliate Program is an exclusive discount program brought to you by UTU and Dell.
This program, available to UTU members and UTU employees, enables you to realize significant savings on Dell compi-ers and related equipment.

To participate in this program, UTU members and employees must validate their affiliation with the UTU through a secure link on the UTU’s site. They can then proceed to the Dell Web site.
MEDCO offers auto-debit plan

MEDCO has announced that those Medicare-eligible retirees who participate in MEDCO's Medicare Part D prescription drug offerings now have the option of authorizing direct payment from their checking accounts for the monthly premium payment.

UTU retirees who prefer this method of payment can call MEDCO's Medicare Part D Auto Debit department toll-free at (800) 455-7542 and begin the automatic monthly debit from their checking accounts over the phone.

Also, there is a section on the MEDCO remittance form where participants can write the required information and submit it with their payment to establish this automatic payment process.

It should be noted that the UTU neither sponsors nor endorses the MEDCO Part D auto debit program. Questions or concerns related to the program should be directed to MEDCO by calling (800) 455-7542.

UTU retirees keep history alive by starting railroad museum

Three retired railroad workers, all UTU and UTU for Life members, are working to keep the glory days of railroading alive.

James Cruce, who retired in 1991 after 47 years as a brakeman and conductor with the Illinois Central Railroad, has spent years of his retirement working with Workers' Museum of the Illinois Central Railroad in Fulton, Tenn., on a railroad museum.

Cruce, nicknamed "Railroad Rabbie" for his quick switching abilities and his memories of Local 357 in Jackson, Tenn., Thompson, who worked out of Memphis for the IC, have fired up the Twin Cities Railroad Museum in Fulton, Tenn.

Cruce said, "The big railroad is just across the state border in Fulton, Ky. There were 500 people employed by the railroad here in 1911. Now there are about 15 volunteers in the first shift. We once had 12 passengers trains a day through here. Today we have two. It's a shame they let that die."

What will not die is the desire by these three keep rail history alive.

"I was in a little rail museum in Oklahoma and they had it full of stuff, including one room full of dining car silverware and china. I decided to try the same thing," Cruce said. "I just picked up a few thing here and there over the years, and my collection is the basis for this museum."

The museum will feature "anything that has to do with railroad history," Cruce said, "including timetables, books, maps, history books, photos, railroad lanterns, switch keys, switch locks, uniforms, maybe a hand car, all kinds of history. I even have a large mural painted on the wall of the old depot that they tore down in 1979."

The Twin Cities Railroad Museum, at 700 Milton Con东南亚 Dr. in South Fulton, Tenn., is open to two or three days a week, staffed by volunteers like himself, Gamblin and Thompson.

"We are just a couple of railroaders who want to keep railroad history alive," Cruce said.

High gas prices lead to surge in bus transit

The American Public Transportation Association (APTA) reported last month that Americans took 2.6 billion trips on public transportation in the first three months of 2008, almost 83 million more trips than the same period last year. Last year 10.3 billion trips were taken on U.S. public transportation — the highest number of trips taken in 50 years. In the first quarter of 2008, public transportation continued to climb and rose by 3.3 percent.

Light rail had the highest percentage of rider- ship increase among all modes, with a double digit 10.3 percent increase for the first quarter. Commuter rail posted the second largest rider- ship increase at 5.7 percent. Heavy rail (subways and elevated trains) ridership increased by 4.4 percent. Bus ridership saw an increase of 2 per- cent nationwide, with the highest increases in San Antonio, Denver and Minneapolis.

SEPTA quietly offers budget with no fare hikes

With none of the fireworks that often accompany SEPTA's financial dealings, the transit agency's board last month approved a $1.095-billion operat- ing budget for the year that begins July 1. No fare increases are needed to fund the budget, which is $73 million, or about seven percent, above the current one. Much of the increase is due to higher fuel costs; SEPTA budgeted $21 million more for diesel for its buses, a 30 percent rise.

With ridership up, a new general manager, and a new predictable pattern of state subsidies, SEPTA breezed through its budget season with unfamiliar calm.

The biggest cost, $734 million, covers salary and fringe benefits for SEPTA's 9,358 employees. Other budgeted expenses were $196 million for materials and services, $35 million for injuries and damage, and $32 million for electric propul- sion power.
smaller carriers carry to the agreement. UTU District 1 general chairperson voted unanimously in February to recommend a “yes” vote.

Futhey credited the negotiating committee with pursuing a positive, cooperative interest-based bargaining approach with the carriers when stalled negotiations were resumed in January — “and the carriers responded with a positive and cooperative attitude, leading to the tentative agreement,” Futhey said.

A reconstituted negotiating committee, which sat down again with the carriers in January, included Futhey, Assistant President Art Martin, International Vice Presidents John Baller, J.K. “Jim” Cumby and Robert Kerley, National Legislative Director James Brunkeifer, and General Chairpersons John Lesniowski and Delbert Strunk.

Prior to voting, the UTU International officers conducted dozens of meetings nationwide to explain the agreement and provide members opportunity to ask questions “to ensure members were fully informed as to all provisions of the contract prior to their casting a ballot,” Futhey said.

The tentative agreement also was posted in its entirety on the UTU Web site prior to its being mailed, along with agreed-upon questions and answers jointly written by UTU negotiators and the carriers.

The ratified agreement covers conductors, brakemen, engineers, firemen, hostlers, switchmen and yardmen. Yardmasters voted separately on an agreement similar in most respects to the national agreement covering all other crafts represented by the UTU.

Members will receive retroactive pay from the carriers within 60 days.

This was only the second national rail agreement ratified by members in the 39-year history of the UTU. The 2002 national rail agreement was ratified by all crafts, with 76 percent of those voting in 2002 favoring the agreement.

The table above shows the results of voting by craft, as reported by the American Arbitration Association after voting closed at midnight, June 9.

MetLife adds accelerated benefit option; United HealthCare conducts eligibility audit Life insurance provider MetLife has recently implemented an “accelerated benefit option” (ABO) for all active employees eligible for life insurance under the Railroad Employees’ National Health and Welfare Plan and the NRC/UTU Health and Welfare Plan. This benefit does not apply to retirees.

Under the ABO provision, an employee who is diagnosed as terminally ill as a result of an injury or sickness, with a medical prognosis of life expectancy not to exceed 12 months, will be able to immediately receive a payment of up to 50 percent of his or her life insurance benefit.

This money can be used for any purpose.

Any request for ABO consideration is subject to medical review and approval by MetLife. The remainder of the life insurance benefit will be payable to the listed beneficiary(s) upon employee death.

Please note that this benefit is automatically available to all members covered by the plan; therefore, there is no need to take any action to elect it.

If you wish to submit a claim for consideration of this benefit, please contact MetLife at (800) 310-7770, and choose prompt #1.

In other news, United HealthCare has taken over the eligibility audit process.

Over the past several months, Aetna has been conducting an audit of eligible dependents and requiring employees to submit proof for their eligible dependents to continue uninterrupted health-care benefits.

Those employees who failed to provide the required proof had their dependents’ coverage terminated, effective April 13, 2008.

United HealthCare has now taken over the eligibility audit process and if you receive notification that dependent coverage has been terminated, immediately call United HealthCare at (800) 733-2692 in order to obtain information about reinstating those eligible dependents.

The UTU International Staff is here to serve you

Barbara Bankston-Gavin

Barbara Bankston-Gavin has worked for the UTU since 1981. She currently co-director of the union’s Updating and Auditing Department. She started in the Data Entry Department then moved to the switchboard for about 12 years. She was promoted to her latest position about five years ago. “I serve the members by answering their questions about dues,” she said. “I also assist local treasurers, do audits of locals, and if an auditor needs a hand, I am ready. I also serve as secretary of the UTU’s Human Rights Committee.” In her spare time, Barbara enjoys taking care of her grandchildren.

Mike Vajentic

Mike Vajentic serves both the UTU and UTUIA as a new systems architect in the Information Services Department. Say what? In other words, he creates custom-designed software used throughout both organizations. “We look at the business processes for all UTU and UTUIA departments, then design and build software to try to improve them,” Vajentic said. Most of his work is on the new Off Web-based applications, used both internally and by local and general committee officers.

Kathleen Spellacy

Kathleen Spellacy is the assistant director of the UTU’s Updating and Auditing Department. She started with the union in 1975 as an insurance processor in the Updating Department, but has held numerous jobs throughout the union. She settled in the Updating and Auditing Department in 1995. “I make sure the dues deductions are correct; that insurance premiums are correctly deducted, and that Disability Income Protection Program payments are accurately collected. I also train auditors, and answer written and telephoned questions members may have about their dues and premiums. I get calls for a wide variety of reasons, and try to answer them all.”

Meet your UTU Designated Legal Counsel

There is no more dangerous work environment than on the railroads, where injuries too often are severe. The Federal Employers’ Liability Act (FELA) makes railroads accountable for unsafe working conditions. Railroads are also liable to attorneys to protect their interests. You also have access to skilled and experienced attorneys who understand the railroad industry, its safety hazards, and every aspect of the FELA. They are the UTU Designated Legal Counsel, chosen for their special knowledge and experience. Their job is to represent you. This concluding column introduces you to all of the UTU Designated Legal Counsel. For a complete listing, go to the UTU home page at www.utu.org and click on the blue tile, “Designated Legal Counsel.”

“UTU members injured on the job are protected by the Federal Employers’ Liability Act. The employee, or his/her attorney, must prove the railroad was at fault before damages can be awarded. That is why injured members should seek the advice of UTU Designated Legal Counsel, who have proven experience in dealing with the FELA and railroads.”
Regional meetings offer information, fraternity

The 2008 UTU/UTUIA regional meetings have been designed to provide a grand sense of fraternalism, lots of worthwhile education and tons of fun for the whole family.

As before, each regional meeting will run for 2 1/2 days, ending early on the afternoon of the third day. The evening of the first day has been left unscheduled so you, your family and friends will be free to explore and enjoy the many offerings of the regional meeting cities.

Neither Denver nor Nashville has been designated the joint U.S.-Canadian regional meeting. Canadian members are free to attend the meeting that interests them.

All those attending the regional meetings must be registered in order to attend any planned social function. Children ages 11 and under who are pre-registered are complimentary. The registration form is printed on the right.

A completed registration form listing each attendee, regardless of age, and complete payment in U.S. funds must be received at the UTU International Headquarters, 14600 Detroit Ave., Cleveland, OH 44107, 30 days prior to the scheduled start of the meetings or the registrant will be charged an on-site registration fee of $200.

The pre-registration fee for the 2008 regional meetings is $150 per member, spouse or child over age 11. Additional fees apply for the golf outings. You must make your own room reservations, and certain deadlines apply.

The $150 registration fee covers all workshop materials; a welcoming reception the night before the meeting; two lunches, one evening meal, and a breakfast buffet. Those wishing to attend only the workshops do not need to pay the welcoming registration fee. No one-day registrations will be offered.

You may cancel your regional meeting registration 10 days prior to the first day of the meeting or the golf outing without penalty. Please fax any changes or cancellations immediately to the UTU International at (216) 928-5755.

Daily room rate: $125 single/double, $20 each additional person, Room rates are good three days before and after the meeting, based upon availability.

Reservation deadline: July 15, 2008, or until all rooms held for UTU are reserved.

Parking: $12.00 per day; $20 valet

Golf outing: The regional meeting golf outing will be held Sunday, Aug. 17, at the Gaylord Springs Golf Links in Nashville. The cost is $80 per golfer, which includes transportation, golf, lunch and much more.

UTU Regional Meeting Registration Form

Registering before the regional meetings speeds sign-in procedures at the meeting site, helps organizers plan more accurately, and saves on meeting costs. These savings will be passed on to each pre-registered attendee.

Each person attending the regional meeting, including family members and guests, MUST be registered in order to attend any planned event. Please note that these meetings last 2 1/2 days and conclude on the afternoon of the third day. Registration fees are $50 per person, children 11 years of age and under are complimentary. On-site registration will be $200 per person. All fees must be paid in U.S. funds. Canadian funds will be returned, possibly delaying your registration. If you have questions, consult your bank. Registration forms with payment must be received 30 days prior to the start of the meeting.

The UTU Public Relations Department awards UTU gear to the union member who submits the best photograph during the previous month.

The winning photo will be published in the UTU News. Exceptional photographs will be included on the UTU Website.

The UTU would like to see photographs or digital photographs of work-related scenes, such as railroad, bus or mass transit operations, new equipment photos, scenic shots, activities of your local, or photos of your brothers and sisters keeping America rolling.

Printed photographs should be mailed to UTU News, 14600 Detroit Ave., Cleveland, OH 44107.

High-resolution digital photographs should be in the JPEG format and e-mailed to "utunews@utu.org".

With each photograph, please include your name and UTU local number, the name of the photographer (if providing picture to right), where the photo was taken, and all other pertinent information.

All photographs submitted become property of the UTU.

Remember to review your employer’s policies regarding use of cameras on the property or during work hours.

Obama promised UTU’s full support

When John McCain seeks advice on transportation issues, he consults with railroad management.

When Barack Obama seeks advice on transportation issues, he consults with the United Transportation Union.

Now that Sen. Clinton has exited the race, Sen. Obama – also a long-time UTU friend – has been assured he can depend on the extensive resources of the UTU in his fight to claim the White House.

"Sen. Obama can count on my using every resource at our disposal to elect a labor-friendly administration this Election Day," said UTU International President Mike Futhey. "We will work with Sen. Obama at every opportunity to get out the vote in support of his campaign to bring the change we all can believe in."

Obama indicated he understood the reasons for the UTUs previous support for Clinton, who had worked with the UTU on Capitol Hill in support of Railroad Retirement, the Federal Employers’ Liability Act (FELA), Amtrak and a revision in commercial driver-licensure standards that threaten the livelihood of bus operators.

"Sen. Obama similarly and fully understands these issues from the perspective of working families and UTU members, and has been, and will continue to be, in our corner," said Illinois State Legislative Director Joe Scab, who serves on the Obama campaign’s Transportation Policy Committee, with approval of President Futhey.

In his advisory role, Scabo helps to define for Obama various rail, transit and bus public-policy issues and the transportation policy approach an Obama administration might pursue.

Obama recently was quoted as supporting a policy favoring "significant investments" in the nation’s transportation infrastructure, including connecting the Midwest with a fuel-efficient high-speed rail-passenger system that would provide immediate jobs.

Scabo’s close professional relationship with Obama extends back more than a decade to Obama’s first run for public office in Illinois, where Obama served in the state senate. "There is a strong history of Sen. Obama never failing to support UTU’s legislative agenda in the Illinois State Senate," Scabo said. "That track record has continued in the U.S. Senate."

National Legislative Director James Brunkenhofer said, "The UTU is looking forward to working with the Obama administration and I am certain his policies will improve the lives of all UTU members and their families."
