Imagine reading the following news stories in 2011:

WASHINGTON – Congress has voted to repeal the Federal Employers’ Liability Act (FELA), saying the law is too costly for the railroad industry.

WASHINGTON – Concluding union-advocated safety laws and regulations are draining corporate profits, Congress has ordered a freeze on new workplace safety initiatives.

WASHINGTON – Saying union organizing makes U.S. manufacturing less competitive, Congress has voted to end federal support for Amtrak and high-speed rail projects, saying the nation can no longer afford the cost; and that automobiles and airplanes provide sufficient transportation mobility.

WASHINGTON – Lawmakers in Congress have voted to privatize Social Security.

Far fetched? Many employers and their favored hard-core conservative and anti-labor candidates don’t think so, and those results could well occur if working families ignore their ability to determine the outcome of political races.

This Election Day, Nov. 2, the entire U.S. House of Representatives, one-third of the U.S. Senate, 37 governorships and the balance of power in many state legislatures will be decided. For sure, corporate interests will be voting for candidates who put profits before worker safety and working-family economic security.

Only when working families make their voices heard on Election Day – voting their paychecks – are we able to counter the anti-union efforts of employers to turn back decades of worker-friendly legislation and regulation.

In the centerfold of this issue is a listing of labor-friendly congressional candidates – Democrats and Republicans – pledged to listen to the concerns of working families and protect job security, workplace safety, paychecks, access to affordable health care and pensions.

The endorsements follow months of research and interviews with the candidates by UTU state, regional, local and national legislative office and the AFL-CIO.

Also in this issue are columns by UTU International President Mike Futhey, National Legislative Director James Stem and Bus Department Alternate Vice President Bonnie Morr explaining the risks we take by allowing anti-labor, conservative forces to determine election outcomes.

As President Futhey says in his column, “By voting our paychecks and retaining a labor-friendly Congress, we help elect lawmakers who understand the needs of working families – and who open their doors and ears to labor leaders.”

We can be sure that carrier executives and their families and friends will be going to the polls – and it won’t be to fulfill the vision of founding father Thomas Jefferson, who said in his second inaugural address in 1801: “A wise and frugal government shall not take from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned.”

If working families are to walk a common path to a brighter future, we must exercise our power at the ballot box and elect a labor-friendly majority to Congress and state legislatures.

In these very difficult economic times, supporting those who support working families is the most effective means of protecting our job security, workplace safety, paychecks, access to affordable health care and pensions.

Vote your job, paycheck, safety and future.

News and Notes

“Thanks Anthem, UTU”

UTUIA Field Supervisor Dan McElroy recently received a telephone call from Thomas A. Wilson, a member of Local 1252 in Fresno, Calif. Wilson had received bad news from his doctor. He could no longer work on BNSF.

“Brother Wilson applied for a disability from Anthem, which UTU provided to its members when I began Jan. 1, 2010,” McElroy said. “He said that it was a lifesaver to receive these benefits and the checks have been coming in weekly and the people from Anthem have been so helpful! He said thanks to President Futhey and his administration for their work at getting this done.”

Anthem Life Insurance Co. provides a national group voluntary short-term disability plan for all rail members. (Lincoln National Life Insurance provides coverage for bus members.) Coverage is automatic unless the member opts out.

The Anthem rail disability insurance plan provides a basic “safety net” of coverage for UTU members, and was designed to work in combination with Railroad Retirement sickness benefits.

The Anthem plan pays up to $346 a week for up to 52 weeks a year, and provides 24/7 coverage for accidents and sickness. The 24/7 means on- and off-duty coverage for accidents and sickness. The cost is $31 per month, and is collected through payroll deduction.

For more information see the UTU website, www.utu.org.

Two members killed; another loses arm

Two UTU members died in separate on-duty rail accidents in September and a third suffered an arm amputation in a train collision.

These two on-duty deaths brought rail-employee on-duty fatalities for 2010 to 13, which is three more than the 10 reported on-duty fatalities for all of 2009; and brought UTU-member on-duty rail fatalities to eight for 2010, which is equal the 12-month total in 2009.

Near Paulsboro, N.J., Sept. 2, a Conrail Shared Assets conductor – John M. McCabe, age 52, of Ridley Park, Pa., and member of Local 1390, Trenton, N.J. – died during what FRA investigators report was a two-man conventional switching move into an industrial facility. The FRA said the move was observed by a surveillance camera “seconds before impact.”

In Mobile, Ala., conductor Josh Roper, 27, died Sept. 4 while working a conventional switching job on Alabama State Docks Terminal Railroad. He had been furloughed by CSX before being on with the state-owned railroad. Roper was a member of Local 598, Mobile. He is survived by his wife, Cassie, and two-year-old daughter.

In Fontana, Calif., Sept. 10, a surgical team amputated the arm of Union Pacific conductor Al Moncada – a member of Local 1846, West Colton, Calif. – to free him from the wreckage of a locomotive that reportedly struck a slower-moving freight train 50 miles east of Los Angeles.

The UTU participates in the Switching Operations Fatalities Analysis (SOFA) working group, a coordinated effort with the FRA, carriers and labor organizations to develop safe practices that reduce fatalities and career ending injuries in yard switching operations.

To learn more about SOFA safe practices, go to www.utu.org and click on the “Transportation Safety Link” in the blue box on the left.

That link also provides information on the UTU Rail Safety Task Force, which works with general chairpersons, state legislative directors, local officers and members to develop safe practices and techniques to improve – and keep at its highest level – situational awareness in railroad yard and road operations.

Local 586, Willard, Ohio

Members of this CSX local are wishing Vincent M. Novak a long and healthy retirement. Novak, 71, died Sept. 14 after battling cancer for 54 years and 10 days of service. He lived about his age and got hired on the locomotive-shaped barbecue grill, which is currently in service as an engineer. Before coming to CSX, he worked 10 years on various railroad throughout the U.S. and Canada.

He currently serves as local president, chairperson, secretary and legislative representative, and, as a graduate of the National Labor College, has participated in hazmat training instruction at UTU regional meetings for the last several years.

Barnett, a 14-year CSX employee, has worked as a conductor and RCO foreman and is currently in service as an engineer. Before coming to CSX, he worked 10 years on various railroads throughout the U.S. and Canada.

He has tremendous pride in our union, local and my players and will continue to work and believe we make a vital impact for our members at all levels of the union,” Barnett said.

Classroom pizza parties push parents to the polls

Local Chairperson Dale Barnett wants students to become life-long voters when they grow up, and he is using free pizza pies to teach this critical lesson.

At the July meeting of Local 762 at Montgomery, Ala., Barnett was awarded the state’s “Democracy Medallion Award,” an honor only four other Alabama residents have ever received, for his efforts in getting students involved in our nation’s electoral process.

The award was presented to Barnett by former Alabama Secretary of State Nancy Worley, and is given to Alabamians who strive to promote democracy.

“At the suggestion of State Legislative Director Ronnie Clements, I attended a work group to discuss ways to increase voter turnout. Mr. Worley was there and made a reference to the fact that children exposed to voting at an early age tend to become lifelong voters. I knew that I wanted to make an impact,” Barnett said.

During the 2004, 2006 and 2008 elections, Barnett approached the boards of education in the Montgomery training area and suggested offering pizza parties to classes that produced the most “I Voted” stickers from parents, relatives and friends. Mr. He asked the area Pizza Hut Corp. to sponsor a pizza at a school psychologist. It was donated by giving a discount on pizzas to anyone that sponsored a grade level at a school.

“Any individual candidates or political parties were endorsed. We simply wanted people to go to the polls and get kids more interested in voting.”

“Mr. Worley and the state even produced a children’s voting workbook that explained the voting process in simple terms for the kids. I delivered the workbooks to the teachers,” Barnett said. “We encouraged the kids to get their parents, relatives and friends to vote and give them the stickers. There were record turnouts at the polls and the record number of kids attending even made mention in the local news. It was something that seemed to really make an impact with the children.

Barnett, a 14-year CSX employee, has worked as a conductor and RCO foreman and is currently in service as an engineer. Before coming to CSX, he worked 10 years on various railroads throughout the U.S. and Canada.

He has tremendous pride in our union, local and my players and will continue to work and believe we make a vital impact for our members at all levels of the union,” Barnett said.

Barnett, and his wife, Kim, have three daughters and a son. He also assists the Montgomery Police Department in the “Cops for Christmas” charity and has been officiating high school football and basketball games for 25 years.

“I have tremendous pride in our union, local and my players and will continue to work and believe we make a vital impact for our members at all levels of the union,” Barnett said. Two Union Pacific locals in cooperation with the BLET, Secretary & Treasurer Mike Araujo reported. About 250 people were served at Snow Yards and 115 at Altamont.

The event was organized by Local 857 Chairperson Bill Jones. “Safety concerns were collected throughout the four-day event and these concerns are going to be organized and forwarded to the legislative representatives for resolution,” Araujo said

Local 1175, Duluth, Minn.

Long-time Legislative Rep. Richard Olson retired Sept. 1 after 32 years of service and has moved with wife Sheila to join family in California. “Olson also served as a BNSF safety coordinator for eight years and leaves very big shoes to fill,” State Legislative Director Rod Nelm said. “He really pushed the carrier for our members, put out a lot of fires, and took care of our members and their families when someone was hurt or killed.”

Local 1120, Portola, Calif.

Retired UP conductor Dennis “Darby” Dayton of Reno, Nev., died Aug. 19 after a long fight against cancer, according to Nevada State Legislative Director Rod Nels. Local 1293, Altoona, Wis.

Members of this local held their first picnic at Lake Altoona Park’s Altoona Beach, according to President Ken Staves. “We extended our invitation to the city and county of Altoona, and had an excellent turnout. This gave active employees a chance to meet with brothers and sisters from the past and trade stories. We are already planning for next year. It seems like this will remain an annual event,” Staves said.

Local 1344, Mandan, N.D.

The members of this BNSF Railway local presented a UTU pocket watch to recently retired member Lenaus Berger at the local’s August meeting. Local Chairperson Phil Miller reported. “Brother Berger has been a member for 40 years and, prior to accepting his watch, toured the enormous body of work done by the UTU and the importance of belonging to and supporting your union,” Miller said.

Local 1440, Staten Island, N.Y.

WASHINGTON — If you are a train and engine worker, you’ve almost certainly worked a coal train. No commodity hauled by rail even approaches coal’s more than 45 percent of all tonnage originated, and coal also represents 25 percent of rail freight carloads.

Indeed, UTU Alternate National Legislative Director John Risch says coal is so important to UTU-member job security — responsible for some 50 percent of every five freight railroad jobs — that he puts coal in the Christmas stockings of his children.

It is from this understanding of the important link between American coal, railroad prosperity and railroad jobs that Risch told the Environmental Protection Agency last month, which is considering new regulations on coal, to be “very careful how you regulate coal because of its tremendous economic impact.”

“In addition to coal’s railroad-job creating importance,” said Risch, “coal provides almost 60 percent of America’s energy — energy that might otherwise have to be imported from nations not friendly to the United States and our way of life. “Much of our nation’s rail infrastructure has been upgraded and maintained from coal revenue,” Risch told the EPA panel, “benefitting shippers of other commodities as well as Amtrak intercity trains that travel over freight railroad track.”

Coal is important to UTU railroad member job security

Additionally, Risch told the EPA, “If opponents of coal succeed in pricing coal out of the market through extensive and expensive new regulations on coal burning, emissions and ash disposal:

- Tens of thousands of rail jobs will be lost.
- Thousands of miles of the intercity rail network will be abandoned or downgraded.
- Hundreds of communities will be adversely impacted.
- Shippers will lose rail access.
- Untold numbers of more heavy and dangerous big trucks will be added to our already overburdened and deteriorating highway system.”

Also testifying before the EPA panel was an official of Unions for Jobs And the Environment (UJAE), whose 12 members include unions representing more than 3.2 million transportation, mining and utility workers.

The UJAE testified against an EPA proposal to federalize regulation of so-called coal combustion residuals — such as ash from the burning of coal — that are now regulated by state agencies. The UJAE cautioned the EPA against a “one-size-fits-all approach” that would remove the “flexibility and discretion” of states to “tailor standards based on the type of ash generated, the characteristics of that ash, land disposal methods used, and the geology and groundwater conditions of the disposal site.”

DM&IR, I&M members reach agreements

UTU members on two different railroads — Duluth, Missabe & Iron Range, and Illinois & Midland — have reached agreement over wages, working conditions and other issues.

Duluth, Missabe & Iron Range conductors and trainmen represented by the UTU have ratified a new seven-year agreement covering wages, benefits and working conditions. DM&IR is part of CN North America.

The new agreement, retroactive with back pay to 2005, increases job security by restricting future furloughs.

It replaces a standard mileage/rule-based labor contract with one based on hourly wages and job guarantees.

Most of 600+ U.S. train and engine employees work under hourly-rate contracts.

The new agreement also increases wages, provides for retroactive pay, maintains weekly board markups, improves vacation and personal leave benefits, and offers a 401(k) plan with employer contributions.

UTU General Chairpersons Tom Jackson (GIO 321) and Ken Larson (GO 315) led negotiations on behalf of the UTU.

They thanked UTU International Vice President Robert Kerley for his assistance, as well as National Mediation Board mediators Marvin Sandrin (now retired) and Pat Simms for their efforts.

DM&IR operates in northern Minnesota and Wisconsin. Its principal commodities are iron ore and taconite.

CN purchased DM&IR as part of its May 2004 acquisition of the rail and marine holdings of Great Lakes Transportation LLC.

Meanwhile, UTU members working on Illinois & Midland (IMR) have reached a tentative five-year contract with the carrier covering wages, benefits and working conditions for signal maintainers, mechanical forces and maintenance-of-way employees.

The carrier is a subsidiary of Genesee & Wyoming.

The new agreement will be explained to members prior to a ratification vote by all crafts under the UTU Constitution’s craft autonomy provisions.

UTU International Vice President Delbert Strunk has already held meetings in the Springfield, Ill., area to explain the agreement.

It provides a general wage increase, retroactive pay to April 1, 2010, a cap on health care insurance contributions, a new short-term disability plan, an enhanced 401(k) plan, and enhanced options for personal leave days.

Strunk, who assisted with the negotiations, thanked General Chairpersons Bo O’Leary and Vice General Chairpersons Donnie Mauer and Loren “John” Thomas for their efforts during the negotiations.

Yuma, Ariz. — Steve Engstler, a member of Local 307, Tucson, Ariz., said he would prefer simply to be called a Union Pacific conductor, but he is going to have to blush for a while as others take to calling him “a Union Pacific conductor.”

The scene casting Engstler onto the public eye unfolded shortly after sunrise, Aug. 30, when Engstler and his engineer, Matt Wiggins, were some eight hours into their run west from Tucson to Yuma.

As their train rounded a curve in the Fortuna foothills, some 20 miles east of Yuma, Engstler spotted something odd ahead — something white, about 300 feet up a football in the distance. He was certain the object hadn’t been there three days earlier when he passed on an eastbound run.

Engstler queried Wiggins, “Is that a plane?”

As the train followed the tracks closer to the object, Engstler realized the white object was a downed single-engine crop duster.

But what of the pilot?

“This was one instance where no rules would be broken by Engstler turning on his cell phone and dialing 911 for help. He also alerted UP dispatchers.”

“Stop the train,” ordered Engstler, who hopped down onto the hillside to the downed aircraft. Trapped inside was a pilot with two broken legs, facial injuries and multiple cuts on his hands and arms.

According to the U.S. Marine Corps search and rescue helicopter and other first responders, the pilot was a member of a Federation of American Airlines pilot recovery team.

Ray Cunningham retires

Miles “Ray” Cunningham, who has headed the UTU Human Rights Committee since its creation in 2001, retired Sept. 30, following more than 42 years of service aboard Coast Line, CSX and Amtrak. He was Local 924 (Richmond, Va.) chairperson from 1982 to 1986, and has been chairperson and delegate for Local 353 (Richmond, Va.) since 1986. Shown with Cunningham is his daughter, Samantha Royster-Cunningham, an Amtrak conductor, acting president of Local 1933, and a member of the UTU Human Rights Committee.

Alaska Railroad has a new CEO

ANCHORAGE, Alaska — Christopher Aadhnessen of Georgetown, Texas, is the new president and CEO of Alaska Railroad.

Most recently, Aadhnessen was CEO of a 750-mile government-owned railroad in Estonia. Previously, he held executive positions with Union Pacific, Texas Mexican Railway, Transportacion Ferroviaria Mexicana, and Houston’s Port Terminal Railroad.

Aadhnessen succeeds interim president and CEO Bill O’Leary, who replaced Pat Gamble when Gamble departed in April to become president of the University of Alaska.

Working families come first

The photo on this page of Vice President Joe Biden with my wife, April, and me is not about us – it is about the UTU and our union’s access to the highest levels of government.

When we elected the labor-friendly Obama/Biden team in 2008, we voted our paychecks, putting into office an administration that understands the concerns of working families.

We elected a president who nominated the first rail-union officer in history to head the Federal Railroad Administration – former UTU Illinois State Legislative Director Joe Szabo.

Among the responsibilities of the STB is to impose labor protection following rail mergers. At the National Mediation Board, we now have a labor-friendly majority that revised a procedure making it easier for rail and airline workers to gain union representation.

The NMB also made dramatic reductions in outstanding grievances, and streamlined the process for bringing grievances and obtaining more timely awards.

A labor-friendly majority in Congress passed the most sweeping rail safety improvements in workplace safety in generations.

Labor-friendly lawmakers support changes making it easier for bus industry workers to organize, and are pledged to protect Railroad Retirement, Social Security, Medicare and FELA.

Labor-friendly candidates understand and respond to the needs of working families

President Obama’s choice to head the Surface Transportation Board (STB) was former UTU Associate General Counsel Dan Elliott. Among the responsibilities of the STB is to impose labor protection following rail mergers.

At the National Mediation Board, we now have a labor-friendly majority that revised a procedure making it easier for rail and airline workers to gain union representation.

The NMB also made dramatic reductions in outstanding grievances, and streamlined the process for bringing grievances and obtaining more timely awards.

A labor-friendly majority in Congress passed the most sweeping rail safety improvements in workplace safety in generations.

Labor-friendly lawmakers support changes making it easier for bus industry workers to organize, and are pledged to protect Railroad Retirement, Social Security, Medicare and FELA.

Health care reform passed by a labor-friendly Congress allows children under age 26 to remain on their parents’ health care insurance plan without regard to student, marital, residence or financial dependent status.

Our labor-friendly Congress supports improvements in workplace safety affecting bus and transit members, has provided Amtrak with sufficient dollars to keep operating, and voted billions of dollars to fund high-speed rail projects.

On Election Day, the most important consideration for working families is job security, better wages, better benefits and improved working conditions.

By voting our paychecks and retaining a labor-friendly Congress, we help elect lawmakers who understand the needs of working families – and open their doors and ears to labor leaders.

Your vote is your voice. Say it loud and proud

A 1red E. Newman, the not-very-bright Mad magazine character, had an expression shared today by too many Americans: “I am not sure who is running, and my vote won’t make a difference anyway.”

It is doubtful those harboring that opinion would give up their right to vote.

Our war for independence from Britain was about self-government. More recent struggles among women and minorities for the right to vote were equally hard fought.

Today, it is apathy among middle-class workers – not foreign troops, not intimidation at the polls, not laws — that threatens American democracy.

The wealthy and business leaders are more likely to vote than working families.

By not going to the polls, working families put at risk their job security, workplace safety, paychecks, access to affordable health care and pensions.

If you are concerned that your work schedule or other conflicts will hinder your ability to vote on Election Day, Nov. 2, most states allow you an option to vote by mail via absentee ballot, or to vote early.

On to the UTU website at www.utu.org and click on the “Vote Early” button to find out how.

You can be sure that the wealthy and business leaders will vote – and vote for candidates who would undermine the financial security of working families.

Vote for the candidates who will put the interests of working families first

In the centerfold of this issue is a listing, by state, of labor-friendly candidates endorsed by the UTU.

This listing is the result of months of research by state legislative boards, the UTU National Legislative Office and the AFL-CIO – based on interviews with the candidates and their responses to written questions.

Be proud of the middle class lifestyle your UTU contract supports, and consider voting for candidates who will put the interests of working families first.

Illinois

Illinois Legislative Board members recently participated in the railroad exhibit at the Illinois State Fair. “Illinois: Rail Capital of America” was the theme of the 2010 State Fair rail exhibit, and volunteers included employees from the state’s major carriers and the industry’s major labor unions.

UTU and other rail-union members helped visitors to the tent understand the unprecedented revival of America’s rail industry and its long and distinguished past.

“This is a chance to do something very few people ever get to do — tell strangers what you do for a living and why it’s important,” State Director Bob Guy said. “Nobody can do a better job of explaining railroad work than the people who do it for a living.”

“And 2010 is the perfect time to do it,” Guy said, “because railroads are returning to a position of commercial success and public popularity they haven’t enjoyed since before the federal highway and airport programs nearly put them out of business.

“But today the industry is in a total turnaround, and Illinois is the center of the rail revival. With freight business continuing to creep up nationwide, and with all Class I carriers, the tables will be turned as union guests play the roles of the guides, taking Tom to their secret hunting or fishing spot.

Whether you want to take a break from the do-it-yourself routine and join Tom for a guided hunting or fishing adventure, or show your union brothers and sisters and the rest of America that you’ve got the skill and experience to be the guide, send your application in and maybe you will be a star on “Brotherhood Outdoors.”

UTU sportsmen: A TV show wants you

Don’t just watch hunting or fishing shows from your couch. Be a guest star on “Brotherhood Outdoors,” a new cable television series of the Union Sportsmen’s Alliance that will feature hardworking and hard playing union members.

UTU and other union members passionate about the outdoors and who wish to pass on their hunting and fishing heritage to the next generation, have potential to star in this TV series.

“Brotherhood Outdoors,” which will begin airing on the cable Sportsman Channel in July 2011, will portray two kinds of adventure. In some episodes, host Tom Ackerman will take guests on an outfitted hunting or fishing trip in North America, often with a union member-owned outfitting operation. In others, the tables will be turned as union guests play the guides, taking Tom to their secret hunting or fishing spot.

A message to UTU Bus Department members from Alternate Vice President-Bus Bonnie Morr

Right now in our country, economics are spelling out what transit and transportation will look like, now and in the future.

The UTU Bus Department has been following politics and the trends for funding that are necessary for passenger and public transportation to meet the needs of an aging population and growing automobile congestion. It does not look good.

In every town and community, hard decisions must be made — and we want those decisions made by lawmakers who understand the importance of adequate, reliable and safe public transportation, including transportation of school children by bus.

We have a responsibility to our families, children and community to make sure that the funding for public transportation stays in place. We can do that with our votes on Election Day.

When we say, “vote your paycheck,” keep in mind that the jobs of UTU Bus Department members depend on adequate, reliable and safe public transportation.

We need to get out the vote for labor-friendly candidates who support adequate, reliable and safe public transportation.

Think jobs, because there are candidates out there who are coming after our jobs.

When you cast your ballot on Election Day, support candidates who will do the right thing when it comes to funding and ensuring adequate, reliable and safe public transportation.

I am a laborer. I drive a bus. I want the labor protections that labor-friendly candidates will honor with laws and regulations that my mother fought for as an organizer for the Ladies Garment Workers Union.

We have protections as unionized bus operators, and we want to extend those protections to the unorganized. Let us all support candidates who are pledged to increased funding for public transportation, job security, safe working conditions and an environment that respects working families.

In this age of technology, privacy is more important than ever. For this reason, it is essential that BOTH Medicare-covered employee AND spouse complete the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA) authorization form (which protects the confidentiality of patient information) so that information about claims you may incur can be discussed with your spouse.

Palmetto GBA Railroad Medicare has always been concerned with protecting the privacy of the many beneficiaries it serves, and one of the ways Palmetto does this is by making sure that your personal Medicare information is given out to the right people. If you or your spouse call Palmetto’s customer service office to ask questions about your Part B Medicare, before Palmetto answer your questions, you will always be asked to give your: full name; date of birth; health insurance claim number; telephone number.

While Palmetto understands that sometimes it may seem inconvenient, the Privacy Act of 1974 prohibits Medicare from releasing any specific information about your benefits to someone else unless you give your verbal or written permission.

Follow the charts below to determine if you have a Medicare advantage plan.

If your spouse or anyone else calls for you, Palmetto will not be able to give any details about your Medicare information unless Palmetto has your permission. Verbal permission has to be given to the phone at the time of each call. Written permission is more detailed, and can be used for future reference; and must include the following:

- The name of the person or group to whom information can be given.
- The specific types of information (data or records) that can be released.
- Your signature and date you signed your name.
- Length of authorization (ongoing or one-time only).

If Palmetto does not have your verbal or written consent, the only information Palmetto can release is:
- Claim has/has not been received.
- Claim has/has not been processed.
- A Medicare Summary Notice (MSN) can be expected by a certain date.

If you know that your spouse or someone else will be calling for you on a regular basis, consider sending in written permission for them.

Retiree puts money where mouth is

When Alumni Association member Don Fanning talks, he puts his money where his mouth is.

Just three months shy of his 100th birthday, Fanning remains a loyal member and UTU PAC contributor. Local 911 President Cory Plath reports.

Fanning recently attended a monthly meeting of his local in St. Paul, Minn., which prompted Plath to contact the UTU News regarding Fanning’s upcoming birthday.

“Don is amazingly sharp. He still attends local meetings and tells relevant stories about the union and solidarity to his fellow members,” Plath said. “Local 911 has been going through tough times with the carrier, and when Brother Don Fanning visits, we really appreciate his insights.”

He also continues to support UTU PAC.

“Everything I have I owe to this union, and when they ask me to contribute to our UTU PAC, I do it,” Fanning said. “It’s pennies on my dollar.”

When Fanning was hugged in Minneapolis’ Uptown District a few years ago, the first thing he did after getting his driver’s license replaced was to call me and request a new UTU Alumni Association membership card,” Plath said.

Born in 1911, Fanning will become a centenarian on Jan. 26 next year.

Fanning hired out in 1942 and retired in 1981 as a Milwaukee Road brakeman. He is the son of a Canadian National depot agent and spent his early years growing up above different CN stations throughout Ontario and Saskatchewan.

He has been a member of the Scottish Right Shriners for more than 40 years and serves on their scholarship committee for disadvantaged youth.

“I first met Fanning when I was putting up Christmas lights a few years back,” said Minnesota State立法者Director Phil Qualy.

“Don was wearing my Kromer railroad cap and Don was walking by wearing his. I said to him, ‘Hey, only one guy can wear a Kromer in this neighborhood.’ He yelled back ‘Yeah, and that’s me, kid.’ I learned he was a UTU member, and we have been friends ever since.”

As a member, Fanning attributes his longevity, Fanning replied, “It was the food we ate as kids. We used to eat in the meal halls and it was good, healthy food.”

Smelly house built with railroad ties

A couple that bought a bank-owned home built in 1945 has discovered it was built of salvaged railroad ties, reports KXTV in Sacramento, Calif.

“I would guess from a lot of research there are about 1,935 railroad ties,” said Mike Ledbetter. Ledbetter and his wife Daphne first realized the exterior walls were composed of stacked railroad ties when they began remodeling in March.

The exposed ties show marks left by rails and holes from the spikes. Ledbetter said the ties didn’t pose a problem until summer heat brought eye-watering creosote vapors inside the home. “If you walked the railroad tracks as kids playing by trains, you would know the smell,” he said.

The Environmental Protection Agency says creosote is a suspected carcinogen and there are no approved residential uses of lumber treated with creosote.

OneRail Coalition, which includes UTU, asks Congress: “Put rail on equal footing with road, aviation funding”

Support for development of a renewed U.S. passenger rail equipment manufacturing industry would provide for sustained equipment purchases and the creation of a strong domestic supplier base for equipment.

SIR member fighting ALS

Amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS, or Lou Gehrig’s Disease) is a debilitating and terminal disease – and Local 1440 member Robert Sullivan, age 40, an employee of Staten Island Railway, is fighting its effects.

“Sully” has been unable to walk since July 2009 due to the rapid progression of the disease. He is no longer able to feed or dress himself with assistance from his wife Edie, who must also care for their two sons – seven-year-old Max and two-year-old Alex.

Officers of Local 1440, with assistance from New York State Sen. Andrew Lanza and Assemblyman Michael Cusick, appealed to the management of Staten Island Railway to provide pension assistance to Sully. Unfortunately, Sully does not qualify for a reduced pension as he lacks the required minimum 10 years of employment to qualify.

Sully and his family are facing foreclosure on their home. Sully’s union brothers and sisters in Local 1440 now are appealing to all of his UTU brothers and sisters to donate whatever they are able.

Bus operators busted for texting

NEW YORK – An alarming number of MTA bus drivers have been issued summonses for texting, eating, and reading while behind the wheel this year, the New York Post reports.

Since January 2010, a total of 178 operators were caught pecking away at cellphones while carrying passengers around city streets, MTA data show.

Also, seven drivers were cited for eating while operating a bus, and another seven were reading while driving, the MTA said.

The MTA said the drivers were reprimanded, suspended or dismissed depending on their records.

“This is out of 10,000 bus operators,” said Charles Scatton, an MTA spokesman. “The MTA views this as a very serious safety concern and we employ several methods of policing cellphone use behind the wheel.”

Those include sending out scores of MTA officials to watch drivers and following up on rider complaints, the agency said.

In the past, bus operators who are preoccupied while behind the wheel have seriously hurt or killed pedestrians.

Last November, a texting driver killed a 22-year-old F.I.T. student at Ninth Avenue and West 53rd Street. If the driver had not been texting, he would not have hit the young man, a state agency said.

The MTA figures were released as the U.S. Department of Transportation held its second distracted driving summit.

Citing a national “epidemic” of texting while driving, Transportation Secretary Ray LaHood said, “Rules banning commercial bus and truck drivers from texting on the job and restricting train operators from using cellphones and other electronic device while in the driver’s seat have been posted today.”

Report dependent SSNs to retain health coverage

This is a final effort to collect dependent Social Security numbers to comply with new federal law for all medical plans including:

• The Railroad Employees National Health and Welfare Plan; and

• The National Railway Carriers and United Transportation Health and Welfare Plan.

Federal Law now requires the reporting of Social Security numbers (SSNs) for covered dependents to the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS).

This includes participants of all medical plans, including the railroad plans listed above.

In addition, if a covered dependent is eligible for Medicare, then the Medicare Health Insurance Claim Number (HICN) is also required.

To comply with these reporting requirements, Railroad Enrollment Services has mailed a final notice to those members identified with missing dependent SSNs and/or HICNs.

If you have received a notice from Railroad Enrollment Services, please provide the SSN and/or HICN for any dependent who is listed as missing this information.

Be sure to sign, date and return the Social Security Number Reporting Form by the requested return date to the address provided.

If you do not receive a notice requesting missing dependent SSNs and/or HICNs, then you do not need to take any action at this time.

The following will occur if the requested SSNs are not provided for any dependent added to the plan before Jan. 1, 2009:

If Railroad Enrollment Services does not receive the Social Security number for any dependent whose SSN is missing by Jan. 31, 2011, the dependent(s) will be disenrolled from the plan effective Jan. 31, 2011.

Be assured that when Railroad Enrollment Services transmits the SSNs and/or HICNs to CMS, they will maintain all physical, electronic and procedural safeguards that comply with federal standards to guard your personal information.

For additional information regarding the new CMS federal law pertaining to this requirement, visit www.cms.hhs.gov/MandatoryINSRep.

If you have questions, or need another copy of the notification sent to you, call Railroad Enrollment Services at (800) 753-2692.

Additionally, there will be an opportunity to provide missing dependent SSNs and/or HICNs during the 2011 Annual Open Enrollment process in the month of October.
Amtrak members: Report close calls

The UTU’s fourth Federal Railroad Administration-sponsored risk-reduction pilot project, known as “Confidential Close Call Reporting System” (C3RS), has been formalized in a memorandum of understanding among the UTU, Amtrak and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Trainmen.

As its name implies, the pilot project permits conductors, engineers, trainmen and yardmasters to report – voluntarily, confidentially and without fear of carrier discipline or FRA enforcement action – close call events that might have resulted in an accident or injury. Examples of close calls include varying levels of risk, such as leaving pieces of equipment unsecured, improper blocking, operating trains beyond track authority, or violating operating rules.

The close call events will be reported confidentially to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), which has years of experience with similar risk-reduction projects. NASA will mask the identity of those involved before passing on the information for collaborative study among regional peer review teams selected from carrier management, the FRA, the UTU and the BLE.

The regional peer review teams will strive to identify risks that might be reduced or eliminated through corrective action, such as improved training, changes in physical plant, changes in existing federal safety laws or regulations, or changes in carrier operating rules.

The Amtrak Confidential Close Call Reporting System will be implemented nationwide at most Amtrak yard operations.

The UTU already is engaged in pilot confidential close call reporting projects with New Jersey Transit, systemwide; Union Pacific at North Platte, Neb.; and Canadian Pacific at Portage, Wis. “Non-punitive reporting produces safety data that could not otherwise be obtained while helping to identify and mitigate risks before another serious incident occurs,” said UTU International Vice President Roger Previsich, who helped negotiate the Amtrak Confidential Close Call Reporting System memorandum of understanding on behalf of the UTU.

Previsich recognized the support and leadership, in their territories, of UTU General Chairpersons Robert Keeler (GO 769) and Robert Keeley (GO 342).

UTU International President Mike Futhey praised Amtrak President Joseph Boardman for “his hands-on involvement and commitment in expanding this project nationwide on Amtrak.”
