The past two years will be remembered as unique in American history. For the first time ever, our country inaugurated a president with no history of political experience or public service. By the time you read this he will have completed nearly half of his first term in office, making some people happy and others not so much.

Elected in a populist wave unanticipated by just about everyone, Donald Trump rode over the finish line buoyed by campaign promises that working people wanted to hear. With his vows to return jobs to the heartland, bring manufacturing back from overseas, repeal and replace the Affordable Care Act and invest in our infrastructure, working people lined up to vote for this man who promised to put coal miners back to work, drain the swamp and “lock her up.”

The collection of donations and additional relief efforts for SMART Transportation Division members and other victims of Hurricane Florence continued throughout September and into this month. Florence caused catastrophic flooding in North Carolina, especially in the Wilmington and Lumberton areas. Portions of South Carolina and other more-inland areas also were affected by the storm’s tremendous rainfall.

Financial services firm Moody’s estimated in late September that the economic toll from damage and disruptions caused by the storm ranged from $17 billion to $22 billion. In the face of disaster, however, SMART TD members have been stepping up to assist by contributing goods and money. LCA – CSXT Secretary and UTUIA Field Supervisor Chris Fly (Local 1106) began a relief effort soon after damage became apparent.

Matt Hanson, left, alternate legislative representative, vice local chairman and trustee of SMART Transportation Division Local 171 (Aurora, Ill.), speaks during the Hollywood, Fla., regional meeting with Rick Tapia, who was a candidate for the Florida House of Representatives. Hanson, who is running for the Kane County Board, is among a number of TD members who are seeking political office in the Nov. 6 elections.

Locals 48, 662 and 971 donate backpacks in Virginia

Students in Virginia were provided with backpacks for school prior to the start of classes by a SMART Army effort on the parts of members from Local 662 (Richmond, Va.), at left, Local 971 (Crews, Va.), top, and Local 48 (Norfolk, Va.), above. Virginia State Legislative Director Ronnie Hobbs helped coordinate the donations.

Local 1596, Charlotte, N.C.

Local 1596 and Concord Transit Authority (CTA) ratified a new three-year agreement for Rider transit service, effective July 1, 2018, to June 30, 2020.

The committee of Chairperson James Reid, Vice Chairperson Roosevelt Camell and Secretary of the Committee Priscilla Meredith led by General Chairperson Craig Patch achieved the goal of bringing a great agreement to the membership.

The committee added additional members by adopting language to bring in paratransit drivers and also negotiated a max time period for company investigation. Additional sick time for part-time employees, an additional personal day, uniform reimbursement and wage increases each year were gained during the agreement’s term.

Rider provides transportation for Concord, N.C., and Kannapolis, N.C., both north of Charlotte.

Local 1895, Chicago, Ill.

SMART TD Local 1895, along with SMART TD Auxiliary Lodge 723, hosted its 12th annual Union Day at the Ballpark Sept. 8 when the Chicago White Sox took on the Anaheim Angels at Guaranteed Rate Field. More than 125 members, friends, and family attended the tailgate party and the game, which Chicago lost, 12-3.

Locals 240 and 1770, Los Angeles, Calif.

A pair of Los Angeles-area members are pulling the pin after decades of service, reports Harry Garvin, chairperson of Local 240.

Tim M. Cosner, a conductor/brakeman/switchman, is retiring with 39 years of service at City of Industry LOS27-03. Cosner hired out with Southern Pacific Railroad on Sept. 2, 1979, and was promoted to conductor April 15, 1981. All the officers and members of Local 240 want to wish him a long and happy retirement.

Randy L. Douglas, also a conductor/brakeman/switchman, is retiring after more than 40 years of service on ITCF Local at Long Beach/Dolores LOI21-30. He hired out with Southern Pacific Railroad on April 24, 1978, and was promoted to conductor. All the officers and members of Locals 240 and 1770, wish him a long and happy retirement.

SMART Transportation Division congratulates both Cosner and Douglas and wish them both well in their retirements.

Local 1554, Ogden, Utah

Det. Chelsea Winslow, daughter of retired Utah State Legislative Director Pat Winslow, was recently honored by the Greater Salt Lake Unified Police Department for her work with the Taylorsville precinct on an embezzlement case and a drug case. She received the Precinct Chiefs Award in August.

Local 1674, Los Angeles, Calif.

Locomotive engineer Mark Cawelti retired Aug. 30 after 39 years with the BNSF and former Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe. Cawelti was a former local president and vice local chairperson of Local 1674 and a career-long member of UTU/SMTA TD. Members from both Locals 1674 and 1544 were in attendance at Cawelti’s retirement party at BNSF’s Watson Yard.

“I hired out with Mark, and we went into engine service together,” Vice President John England said. “I am proud to call Mark my friend and to have worked with him for many years and wish him all the best in retirement.”

SMART Transportation Division congratulates Cawelti on his retirement.
If you don’t stand up for yourself at ballot box, who will?

By Joseph Sellers Jr.

Brothers and sisters, if you feel like things are headed in the wrong direction, you hold the power to help us change that: by voting with your fellow union brothers and sisters to help determine the course of our nation.

It’s important to note this is a right rather than a burden, but with a majority of working people and one we must engage in participating in the voting process. Politicians are elected to serve their constituents and what should be in their best interest. They need to pay attention to the issues actual voters care about. That is why we need you to use your collective voice to make sure we are heard loud and clear and that nobody else is speaking for you.

One factor that adds value to your union membership is the benefits you receive from the healthcare negotiated for you. While many people have their healthcare coverage and livelihoods hanging in the balance due to reckless decisions by lawmakers in Washington, many politicians continue to be more concerned about the short-term profit incentives of insurance companies than the quality of life working families deserve.

It’s not just healthcare that determines our well-being. That’s why we must explain our efforts to make America’s railroads as safe as possible for the members they employ and the communities they pass through, along with the public they transport. We can only achieve this by mandating two-person train crews as the law of the land.

We must also continue to fight harder for the safety of our brothers and sisters who operate our nation’s trains in systems that continue to be abused and assaulted by unruly passengers while being given little or no protections on the job. That’s why SMART strongly supports and is pushing legislation that would ensure the safety of our bus and transit operators. And that is why we are working to elect those in office who will continue to raise awareness and fight for the well-being of our members in each sector of our industry. It doesn’t end with your healthcare or the safety of your workplace.

Remind your friends that Rail Retirement has often been a target on the chopping block from some members of Congress. With the ballooning deficit that has now emerged from the latest corporate tax giveaway, expect current leaders in Washington to look for other ways of paying for it. Corporations are buying back their stock, again on the backs of workers, and those tax breaks don’t “trickle down” to workers in real wage increases. In fact, members will not be able to claim and write off traditional deductions for working families such as unreimbursed business expenses.

Before he became House speaker, Paul Ryan proposed conforming Railroad Retirement so that the benefit would pay out the same as Social Security—even though we have all paid more than our fair share into it. This ignores the fact that all Railroad Retirement benefits above Social Security in Tier 1 or Tier 2 benefits are fully funded by railroad workers and their employers. But Speaker Ryan and a lot of his conservative friends have continually seen this as an opportunity to raid it to pay for the tax cuts of their wealthiest donors. Thankfully, SMART and our allies in the rail industry were able to stop this scheme. But the fight isn’t over— we need to get out and vote to make sure our representatives know we are paying attention to stop future attempts to do the same.

At the end of the day, we must stand behind those who are standing up for us and our agendas. On Election Day, make sure you are prepared to vote and, if possible, vote early if you can in your locality. Text the words VOTE UNION to 21333* to check on your polling location and any other Election Day information you may need.

Joseph Sellers, Jr.

Previsich column: Elections matter

So far, the record of success on those promises is spotty at best. The swamp may have been drained, but many say it is now full of a new bunch of alligators more vicious than the last, all intent on dismantling protections for working people while filling the pockets of the very wealthy. Statistically, we feel like steel plants and coal mines are not revived as promised, manufacturing is still going offshore faster than it is returning, and the recent uptick in employment is due primarily to an increase in low-wage service jobs. The tax bill provided minimal cuts for working people on a temporary basis while extending the same level for the wealthy.

You will read in this publication that elections matter; elections have consequences. The impact of those consequences on the people that we represent is far reaching. From the recent Janus decision of the Supreme Court, the loss of away-from-home-expenditures to the workers but not for the companies, the refusal of federal agencies to provide oversight in the safety arena; all of these (and many more) provide relief for management at the expense of workers. Hard-fought rights and protections are being overturned on a regular basis, for every craft in every industry.

People who work for a living have plenty in common. Their desire for a fair day’s pay for a fair day’s work reaches out across all of labor, providing a connection that transcends craft or class. Regardless of political leaning, left or right, that common bond will allow labor to stand in solidarity and speak with one voice in the upcoming midterm elections. Our voices need to be loud and clear. We need to inform all who run for office that we expect any candidate who makes promises to working people while on the campaign trail to fulfill those promises when elected. This year, more than ever, it is absolutely critical that working people stand up and be counted through participation in our midterm and fall elections.

Every vote counts! Some have said that they don’t bother to vote because they think their ballot won’t have any impact over the outcome. A number of recent contests have demonstrated that elections often come down to just a few votes making the difference. Now is not the time to sit out and let others decide our future—we need to vote, we need to support the candidates who support us, and we need to be proactive in advancing our cause with our friends and neighbors, relatives and acquaintances. Every vote matters, and a vote not cast is the same as a vote against your interests. We ask that you make sure that you are registered, that you vote when the time comes and that you help deliver our message of solidarity in every forum.

Fraternally,

John Previsich

Assistance still needed for Florence relief

“It’s extremely humbling to see the railroaders and community go from having everything to losing it all,” Fly said after making a delivery of supplies to members in the Lumberton and Fayetteville area. “I saw Mercedes to Pintos in the parking lot trying to acquire items of necessity. Whether you’re poor or doing well financially, when you lose everything, EVERYONE is on the same level.”

Fly estimated that goods and supplies collected and brought to SMART TD Disaster Relief Fund, which can be sent to: SMART TD Disaster Relief Fund 24950 Country Club Blvd. Suite 340 North Olmsted, OH 44070-5333

Donations are tax deductible to the extent permitted by law. In addition, UTU President Kenneth Laugel announced Sept. 19 that his organization was giving $5,000 to relief efforts for members affected by the storm.

“The devastating flooding and the resulting damage in the Carolinas and particularly North Carolina continues to grow as a result of the aftermath from Hurricane Florence,” Laugel said. “It is our hope and desire that this will serve to ease the burden of those who are suffering.”

Elections, endorsements are serious business

Elections have consequences, here are some examples:

- Federal regulations requiring two crew members on nearly all trains were nearly completed when President Barack Obama left office. Those pending regulations have been stopped and will likely never be issued under President Donald Trump.
- On Sept. 8, 2015, Gov. Jerry Brown, a Democrat, signed into law a bill that requires two crew members on all freight trains in California. That is now the law of the land there.
- On June 8, 2017, Brian Sandoval, the Republican governor of Nevada, vetoed a bill passed by the Nevada Legislature that would have required two crew members on all freight trains in the state.
- On May 25, 2018, Larry Hogan, the Republican governor of Maryland, also vetoed a bill passed by the Maryland Legislature that would have required two crew members on all freight trains there.
- Other pending federal regulations that deal with fatigue and workplace safety remain on hold and will likely not be issued during President Trump’s time in office.
- The call to reform “entitlements” by House Speaker Paul Ryan, a Republican from Wisconsin, could result in an increase of the retirement age for our bus and rail members as well as cut overall retirement and Medicare benefits. Who we elect to public office matters. It matters to our job security, it matters to our safety on the job, and it matters to our pensions.

This newspaper includes our official endorsements for the Nov. 6 election. These endorsements are based on the voting records of current elected officials and on interviews and commitments of those who are seeking office.

During the next session of Congress, we will be working to pass legislation requiring a minimum of two persons – a certified conductor and a certified engineer – on all trains. We will be working to pass meaningful legislation to prevent operator assaults, something that happens far too frequently to our bus and rail passenger members. We will be working to increase funding for the National Mediation Board so that it receives the resources necessary to resolve disputes in the workplace in a timely manner. Electing labor-friendly legislators is key to our success on all these issues.

Our National Legislative Office can be the best in the business. However, if this election produces a Congress with a majority of legislators who don’t believe in the fundamental rights of workers, our efforts to protect our members’ jobs, retirement income and workplace safety will be much more difficult.

We all have our personal views about life and government. Our union has members who consider themselves Democrats, Republicans, independents, Libertarians and environmentalists and we all have opinions on just about every issue out there.

While I appreciate our diversity, I urge you to support candidates for office who will support us on our issues. These endorsements are based on commitments to supporting two-person train crews, Amtrak, the coal industry, transportation funding, and other critical issues important to our jobs.

ARTICLE 218 of the SMART Constitution requires that we make these endorsements and we take this responsibility seriously. If you want to see how your political representatives voted on our issues, go to www.smart-union.org and click on the Legislative Action Center button at the bottom-right corner of the homepage.

Neither I nor anyone else in our union tells anyone “how to vote.” What we do is fulfill our constitutional responsibility to endorse candidates who support us and those who have pledged to support us, if elected. To do anything less would be shirking that responsibility.

If your state has early or absentee voting, do so, especially if you work a road job or an extra-board.

I’m honored to serve as your National Legislative Director and pledge to do my best, but our odds of success will be much better if we have members of Congress who will work with us on our issues.

If there are any questions about why we endorsed these folks, call me at 202-543-7714.

October 2018 SMART TD News
Alternate NLD explains endorsement process

How do we decide the candidates we endorse? The simple answer is: We endorse the person who will work for our best interest at hand. But many races are much more complex than that — some of the variables considered when making an endorsement include an incumbent’s voting record on our issues, co-sponsorship of any of the five bills we are currently working on and their stance on so-called “right to work.” If a member of Congress co-sponsors right-to-work-for-less legislation, that is an immediate deal breaker for us. We will not endorse anyone who does so. Winnability also is an important factor. It does us no good to endorse someone who has no path to victory and can’t win. Many times we will have a great candidate running against an incumbent whom they can’t beat. It does us no good to back the opponent of someone with whom we will need to work after he or she wins an election.

Committee assignments are a factor. We don’t want to be on the wrong side of a likely chairman or member of the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee unless we feel strongly that the opposing candidate can win. We also believe it’s important to be consistent and to be an organization that keeps its word. They say talk is cheap in D.C., but that’s not the way we work — it’s important to hold up our end. Political party — as hard as some may believe — is not a factor, but voting records are. If members of a particular party tend to support legislation that is beneficial to our union, then the natural trend is for those members to receive our endorsement. The same is true for members of a party who tend to support legislation that is not beneficial to our members; they likely will not receive an endorsement based on our scoring criteria. While doing our evaluations, the average score of Democrats as a party was 95.8 on a scale of 100; the average score for Republicans was 20.4.

In the end, our state legislative boards make recommendations for endorsements and the National Legislative Office in D.C. gives its opinion. The results of the evaluation are what appear on Pages 6 and 7 of this edition of the TD News. What follows are examples of current endorsements to show how this process works.

Arizona U.S. Senate
This pivotal Arizona U.S. Senate race offers one of the clearest distinctions on why SMART TD recommends one candidate over the other. Both Democratic and Republican candidates “have the whole-hearted support and endorsement of the Maryland State Legislative Board!”

Wisconsin
Assistant State Legislative Director Nick Katch of Local 1067 reached out and signed up more than 50 new UTU PAC pledges from his local in the first quarter of 2018. State Legislative Director Phillip Quayl reports.

Maryland

New Jersey
Two pieces of transportation-related legislation were signed into law by New Jersey Gov. Phil Murphy in late August.

A second bill signed into law deals with school bus safety and requires new school buses to be equipped with 3-point lap and shoulder safety belts. The bill was introduced in response to a fatal school bus crash that killed a student and a teacher on a field trip and is in line with recommendations made by a National Transportation Safety Board report.

THE CANDIDATES

In it to win it: Members, retirees and spouses run for office to make a difference at all levels

Lisa Ring, the wife of a SMART TD member, is running a U.S. House of Representatives incumbent in Georgia

Q. What inspired you to run for office?

Empowering people to stand up and be heard. It was a process that began when I was appointed to be a community organizer and activist in Philadelphia. I never thought I would run for office. Yet, seeing a lack of organization in my district and a void of leadership committed to representing the people, pushed me to do the work necessary. It started with encouraging people to run for office and supporting them when they did.

I allowed 18 for elected leaders who want to make a difference in people’s lives.

Q. When did you decide to run?

I decided to run in May 2017 and filed my paperwork a month later. I allowed 18 months of campaigning so I could reach all people in the 17 counties of this district with a message of empowerment and real change.

Q. How has being associated with SMART TD helped you in your campaign?

Having the support of SMART TD has been personally meaningful. My husband is a SMART TD member and strong believer in workers’ rights, it was an honor to me that SMART TD was so supportive. You were the first union to endorse me (last summer) and you provided financial support as well as getting the word out that we can pick up a congressional seat here in the 1st District and further the strength of the working class. You led the way for union support and I’m truly grateful.

Q. What are some of the challenges you have faced in your campaign?

There have been three major challenges. The first is the size of this district — 17 counties, the entire coast from S.C. to Florida; more than 730,000 people. We’ve knocked on over 25,000 doors but there is still so much work to do. Second, is the role of big money in politics. My opposition has millions. I am committed to representing the people of this district and not accepting corporate PAC money. I know we can win despite Carter’s millions, but it requires outlining him and funding our campaign with smaller individual contributions. The third challenge has been gaining access to the power structure. Challenging an incumbent of a first-time candidate has been challenging existing power structures created by the incumbent. We’ve found our way around the barriers created to shut us out, but it has been a challenging process.

Q. Has being a candidate been a worthwhile experience?

Being a candidate has been an amazing experience. It has restored my faith in humanity. As I talk to people all over the district, Democrats, Republicans and independents, I have found that we have so much more that brings us together than divides us. People have been extremely supportive and have stepped up to do the work necessary to make our district work for each of us. The momentum continues daily, and I am extremely proud of everyone who is making their voice heard in any way they can this election.

Q. How can union members show their support for you?

You can be supportive at any level you feel comfortable. Talk to your family, friends and co-workers. Tell them there is an alternative to politics as usual (and make sure they are registered to vote). Share our social media pages and posts. Put a yard sign in your yard. Come canvass with us if you have the time or make phone calls from home. If you are outside of my district, do the same for candidates in your area who have the same message and commitment to public service. And of course, your financial contributions fund our grassroots effort in the district.

Q. Any other words to members of the SMART TD family about the upcoming election?

This is the year we will be making sweeping changes across the country. The 1st Congressional District will play a pivotal part in that change, as will the state of Georgia. This is the year we will elect leaders who will fight for health care for all, a living wage and the protection of our hard-earned benefits. This is the year we create a government that works for us. This is the year we demand more from ourselves and our elected leaders. This is your year. And we need you to make it happen.

Lane Winter's juggles RR schedule, run for Ohio House

Q. What inspired you to run for office?

My union brothers and sisters inspired me to run. In our current political climate with things such as Right to Work, two-person crews, the attack on our pensions, and the disregard for labor in general, I feel that we need a voice that will speak up for our rights. We need a legislator that understands what it is to be a laborer, not just a politician, so I decided to run in April 2017.

Q. How has being associated with SMART TD helped you in your campaign?

Being the L.R. for Local 586 has helped me to understand the concerns and issues of organized labor. I believe that experience is the best teacher.

Q. What are some of the challenges you have faced?

This is my first campaign, so I was sure I have to expect the two challenges that are the hardest obstacles to overcome: time and money. As a railroad worker that works the road, your time is not a thing of your own. Many of my campaigns tried to schedule events, town halls, parades, fundraisers, debates, etc., however, I don’t make it to all of them because I’m on a train somewhere. The scheduling issue is what leads to the money issue. I am unable to host a ton of fundraisers because I’m not a politician… I’m a railroad worker with an unknown schedule.

Q. Has being a candidate been a worthwhile experience?

Absolutely! Every day is an opportunity to learn something new. As I said earlier, experience is the best teacher. On my next campaign, I will know what works and what doesn’t. This experience will make my future campaigns much more successful. I have also learned more about how other unions operate, and what their concerns are, which is invaluable and necessary to be an effective public servant.

Q. How can fellow union members show support?

First and foremost, the best way to support a candidate that you believe in is to get out and vote! The second-best way is to donate money. We have all seen or heard the message of “seven five dollars helps.” As a candidate, let me tell you, that quote holds true! My campaign team writes postcards to voters explaining who I am, and what my positions are. To mail out a postcard is 35 cents. Five dollars literally puts me in touch with 14 voters. If you want to help, you can donate at www.LaneWinters.com. Through my experience as a candidate, let me leave you with this… when you show up on Election Day, make sure to be prepared to cast your votes. Don’t just lock down the list of candidates you want to support and make sure that they stand for you, your career, your family and your future!
Q. What inspired you to run for office?

Kane County has a 24-person county board now devoid of organ labor members. When construction began on my district moved and the seat became vacant, I explored the possibility of my candidacy with party leader-ship. No one from the working class would have to wonder if they have a voice and set of ears at the county board, nor would they wonder if someone has their back when the $265 mil-lion annual budget of the county is formed and re-worked. I will be there for all of us.

There was an ugly strike in Kane County this past spring. Ugly for the men and women who work for the county and are card-carrying union mem-bers. Union members are still being suffocated and forced to take a less-than-ideal new contract they never got to the point of a work stoppage.

The fight of the anti-union “labor is a burden on the budget” mentality is too pretentious in most levels of government. Working-class families — union or otherwise — need someone they can count on in every level. Union officers defend members and contracts every day. In -

H. What is some of the challenges you have faced?

Finding the time and financial resources to run as a first-time candidate. Helping other elected public officials with their campaigns is one thing, trying to connect with 25,000 of my constituents and listen to their concerns is another! Maintaining the fortitude of campaign and work towards November 6th while standing the scrutiny and attacks from the opposition party and its candidates. It’s party politics, which can be very taxing.

Q. Has being a candidate been a worthwhile experi-ence?

Absolutely! I have the opportunity to help a county of over 24,000 people and its 1500 employees move to-wards being a better place to live and work. Meeting resi-dents, civic and labor leaders, elected officials and candi-dates is always a long journey. I have enjoyed all of the journeys is rewarding. Carry-ing the torch for organized labor and the working class is a responsibility I do not take lightly. I want to help future endorsed candidates with their campaigns using my experi-ence to strengthen their plan and path to victory.

Q. How can fellow union members show support?

I have a campaign account at https://secure.actblue.com/ donate/medium-matt-hansens. Anyone willing to help with a contribution can enter my name into the search bar. All donations through the site are secure, and are welcomed and needed. Ten-dollar donations can add up quickly and help get my message and priorities to constituents in District 6, and many are used for campaign operations. My SMART TD brothers and siste-rs can also show support for me by voting the pro-labor candidates on their ballots into office. There are labor-friendly leaders who are willing to fight for what we stand for on every ballot and they can help each other to win across the finish line on November 6.

Q. Any other words to your brothers and sisters about the upcoming election?

There are ZERO excuses for not voting twice each year. There will always be a primary and a general or consolidated election each year. Save the dates! Tuesday, November 6th is Election Day, but voting by mail is another option if you cannot guarantee to get to your polling place. Check your county, parish or borough election website for early voting options available to you leading up to November 6th.

Turn off Netflix for 30 min-utes and do your homework on the candidates on the bal-lot that impact our every-day lives. Take your notes, mark a cheat sheet to the polling place and encourage your family and friends, especially your SMART TD co-workers to do the same. Then get ready to celebrate on November 7th.

nominees are members of the U.S. Senate, members of the U.S. House of Representa-tives with long voting records to consider. For the Demo-crats, U.S. Rep. Krysten Sinema of Arizona’s 9th District has co-sponsored two-person crew legislation three separate occasions and has a SMART TD score of 93. The Republi-can nominee, U.S. Rep. Martha McSally of Arizona’s 2nd District, has a SMART TD score of 3, which includes her support for National Right-to-Work-for-Less legislation, and she has never co-sponsored two-person crew legislation. In fact, McSally has repeatedly refused to meet with members from Arizona to discuss the merits of the Safe Freight Act on eight separate occasions. Based on these voting records and their respective positions on two-person crew legislation, SMART Trans-portation Division strongly recom-mends Krysten Sinema to the U.S. Senate.

N.D. U.S. SENATE

U.S. Sen. Heidi Heitkamp

This is up to New York shows, so if you come to SMART TD recom-mendations, our decision is based on where you stand on the issues, regardless of politi-cal party. If an incumbent has a consistent record of sup-port for the rail labor, they earn our support, no matter how good the challenger may be. This is why SMART TD recommends that Republican Congressman John Katko be returned to Congress. Katko has co-sponsored H.R. 233, the Safe Freight Act, and his own co-sponsorship of H.R. 6016, the Bus Operator and Pedes-trian Protection Act, which is federal legislation to protect bus drivers from assault. 17TH DISTRICT

U.S. Rep. Conor Lamb (D)

When the Pennsylvania Supreme Court redrew the state’s congressional lines due to an unconstitutional gerry-mandering Act, the court’s only member-vv-member congressional race. The newly established 17th District is a suburban Pittsburgh dis-trict represented by four-term Republican member U.S. Rep. Keith Rothfus, who is opposed by newly elected U.S. Rep. Conor Lamb. Since both candidates are incumbents, we looked first to their voting records and then at their endorsements of legis-lation. The data were clear: In the past five years, Rothfus had three opportunities to co-sponsor two-person crew legis-slation. He did not, Lamb, on the other hand, co-sponsored H.R. 233 as one of his first acts following his swearing-in ceremony this year. Rothfus’ lifetime score is a 28, while Lamb, who was voted into Congress in March, has scored a 100 and earns our endorse-ment.

THE ELECTED

Mary Ann Borgeson has been a county commissioner since 1995

Q. What first motivated you to run for office?

My husband, Nebraska SLD Bob Borgeson, was the person who encouraged me to run for office. I also have a degree from the University of Nebraska at Omaha. After we discussed me running for our office with our family and received their love and support, it really was not a dif-ficult decision.

Q. Did your association with SMART TD play a role in your political success?

When you run for office you need a lot of support! The fine men and women with SMART TD were absolutely helpful, and I appreciated all their hard work on my behalf. Because of SMART TD’s political activity, my campaign knew where to go for help including financial contribu-tions.

Q. Does your association with SMART TD help you to spread understanding and awareness of your district’s importance to TD members?

Yes! One very important issue is two-person crews. Holding political office gives you a forum to use to advo-cate for issues important to TD members. I myself will be sworn in as the President of the National Association of Counties (NACO) I interact with elected officials and deci-sion-makers at the national, state and county levels of government. That is good for SMART TD.

Q. Do you have any words for TD members and their spouses as the November election approaches?

As I always say, you may not be interested in politics, but politics is interested in you. I encourage everyone to get involved in political cam-paigns at any or all levels. I urge everyone to vote and to vote for people who will move our country forward. Your vote matters!
A TD connection: Office holders with a link to our union talk about how they got involved

Patrick Folsom, a county commissioner-elect in Georgia, encourages members to act

I have worked for Norfolk Southern Railroad for more than 20 years now. It didn’t take long to realize the union was a great benefit to my fellow employees and me. I would hear a lot of people complaining about different things but complaining wasn’t getting them anywhere. I had some concerns of my own at times, and I began asking questions and getting involved in my local meetings. From that point on, I was driven to learn as much as I could about what my rights are.

I eventually became president, legislative rep., delegate, insurance rep. and local chairperson for Local 1263 in Valdosta, Ga. If you are a newcomer and just starting a position in SMART Transportation Division, your job is not always going to be easy. If you are local chairperson, you are faced with the task of on-the-job training. Your members will be the driving force because you will consistently be searching for answers to their questions. You will also be fighting for pay claims and to make the task even more challenging, trainmasters will play the “blame game” on held claims. Trainmasters blame crew call, crew call blames dispatch, and on and on. Even though the table is stacked against you, your member is always guilty until you prove them innocent. When you are in a hearing, the hearing officer is only looking out for the best interest of the carrier. Your general chairperson and assistant general chairperson are your greatest resources. Now is the time to get involved in politics.

Q. What motivated you to get involved in politics?

I was attending a meeting with then-Wyoming State Director Terry Ungricht when the discussion turned to upcoming vacancies in the Wyoming Legislature. A candidate moving to the Senate was in the Steelworker’s Union, so the House seat he held was going to be vacant. Those attending wished to keep a union person in that seat to help out workers in Wyoming. They asked me, “Where do you live?” I was a resident of that district. I said, “Let me think about it.” That was 13 years ago.

Q. What did you do?

It wasn’t after my wife told me to go for it. I knew I could because a UTU legislative rep. from Cheyenne had been a legislator before me.

Q. Did your association with SMART play a role in your wanting to get involved in politics?

Most definitely. I had been on the Wyoming Legislative Board when, under the guidance of then-State Director George Bagby, we successfully passed a two-person crew bill in Wyoming. It was vetoed at the last minute by the governor. I saw that you could influence policy by lobbying and getting to know your legislators.

Q. Does your experience with SMART TD help you to spread understanding and advocacy about issues important to our members?

As the only railroader, I am constantly asked railroad questions. Information gleaned from regional meetings and the National Legislative Office is put to full use when educating other legislators and the public of OUR issues.

Q. Do you have any words for members and their spouses as the November election approaches?

Get to know your legislators or those who are running. Ask them what they are going to do to protect your job. What are they going to do to protect your life at work? Volunteer for a candidate who will do these things. Most importantly, register to vote and then GO VOTE.

Q. Any advice for members who may be interested in trying to get involved in running for political office in the future?

Show their support by volunteering for a candidate. Go walk their district with them. Knock on doors, hand out flyers. Mark Adams, a member in Cheyenne, recently had an open house at his residence for someone running for the House of Representatives.

I had helped lobby for the UTU Wyoming Board and it helped me decide to run for office. Before I ran for office, I got involved in several local issues that got my name out to the voters. Sometimes local office holders are the ones who really change things. Run for city council, school board, college trustee. You could then springboard to a different office.

RRB recommendations are made

Both the labor and the carrier sides have made their recommendations to President Donald Trump for new appointees to the Railroad Retirement Board (RRB).

In late August, SMART Transportation Division President John Previsich, along with leaders of 12 other rail unions, sent a letter recommending Johnathan D. Bragg, the vice president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Signalmen (BRS), to fill the labor position on the RRB.

Bragg would replace Walter Barrows, who intends to retire after eight years on the board.

"Bragg comes from a long family of railroaders and began his own railroad career 18 years ago as a freight conductor and later a signalman," the letter stated. "He has climbed the leadership ranks as a Local Chairman, Grand Lodge Representative, Director of Research, and more recently was assigned to represent BRS as a permanent member of the Railroad Adjustment Board.

"Bragg’s long and accomplished career has prepared him for this role. As the Labor Member, Mr. Bragg will bring an invaluable level of experience, knowledge and understanding of the needs of rail workers, retirees and their families who rely on the system."

The three-member RRB administers retirement and disability benefits for the railroad workers and their families.

The board is appointed by the president of the United States, with advice and consent of the Senate.

The president appoints one member upon the recommendation of the railroad employers, another upon the recommendation of railroad labor organizations and the third, the chairman, to represent the public interest. The board members serve five-year terms.

The Association of American Railroads (AAR) and the American Short Line and Regional Railroad Association (ASLRA), recommended Thomas Jayne, a senior general attorney with BNSF Railway, to Trump to serve as the industry representative on the RRB.

Jayne, if confirmed, would replace Steven J. Anthony, whose term is expiring.

Jayne has been with BNSF since 2011 and, prior to that, worked with Thompson Coburn LLP in St. Louis, Mo., on transportation-related cases, among others.

"He enjoys the confidence and full support of the railroad employers who will be affected by his appointment," AAR President and CEO Edward R. Hamberger in ASLRA’s Judy Petry said in their letter of recommendation.

Over the summer, Trump nominated Erhard Chorle, a Chicago attorney, as RRB chairman. Chorle’s nomination is still under review.
